Volume VII Number 4 Bryan-College Station
Summer 1986 Texas

The Brazos County History book, Rich Past, Bright Future is off the press and is receiving a very positive response from those who have had an opportunity to read it. It is a handsome book, and the contents prepared by twenty authors is really outstanding! If you have Brazos County roots, this is a wonderful addition to your library!

Of course, in producing a book that is so all encompassing, there are going to be some gaffes and the authors have dreaded to hear what those are! In the Pioneer Family History chapter, one good pioneer family was omitted--we are still trying to figure out just how that could occur. Here is the account of the family as submitted by Gladys JONES TAYLOR.

Elisha CLOUD Family

The CLOUDs came from Scotland to the U.S.A. in the 1700's and settled in the State of North Carolina. They later moved from North Carolina to Newberry County, South Carolina.

Information about the members of the CLOUD family who came to reside in Brazos County, Texas, begins with Elisha CLOUD, born in 1809 in Newberry County, S.C. Elisha married Ruth COLLINS in Newberry County, S.C. in 1830. They had eleven children--five sons and six daughters. About 1840, Elisha and his family moved from South Carolina to Macon County, Georgia. Five of their children were born in South Carolina and the last six were born in Georgia.

The names of the children of Elisha and Ruth CLOUD were: Catherine, Martha, Sarah, William Wilson, James Washington, Alexandra, Emily, Joseph, Jane, Monroe and Fannie.

About 1868, at the end of the Civil War, Elisha moved with his children and their families (except Catherine and William Wilson) to Texas. The CLOUD families settled in the Kurten area of Brazos County, Texas. A few years later William Wilson moved his family from Georgia to Brazos County.

Elisha's son-in-law, Warren L. EDGE, and J. F. MARTIN were trustees of the Tryon School Community and sold an acre of Tryon Masonic Lodge land to the County Judge of Brazos County for use as one of the first Public Schools in 1883. The years ahead proved their worth as descendants taught in these schools and built culture and education into the new state.

Many of the CLOUD family are buried in the Tryon Cemetery at Kurten. Also many are buried in the Bryan City Cemetery. The CLOUDs were very active in the Free Will Baptist Church at Kurten as well as the Free Will Baptist Church in Bryan.

Some of the great grandchildren of Elisha and Ruth CLOUD still reside in the Bryan area; they are: Maggie (EASTERS) KELLY, Ross TOBIAS, Whit TOBIAS, Guy TOBIAS, Josephine (TOBIAS) LITTLE, Erma (CLOUD) HENSARLING, Mildred CLOUD, Leslie LLOYD, Russell LLOYD, Dora (LLOYD) SAXON, Clint CLOUD, Aline (CLOUD) VICK, Lillie Belle (GILPIN) KINNE, Lucille (JONES) SMITH, Gladys (JONES) TAYLOR.

The ninth child of Elisha and Ruth CLOUD was Jane. She married Lee EDGE in 1866 in Oglethorpe, Georgia, and moved to Texas along with the other CLOUDs. They settled in the Cottonwood Community of Brazos County where they had a stock farm, cotton gin and general store. They had eight children: Bill married Ida SHEALEY at Reliance; George married Mae HARRIS; Monroe married Matilda SCHULTZ; Evie married Dr. Wallace DRUMOND; Ruth married Herbert DRUMOND; Ella married Tom BENBOW; Della (a twin of Ella) married Will PRESNAL; and John married Marie SCHOWDER.

Thank you, Gladys, for allowing us to publish this account in the Advertiser.

If you want to purchase a copy of the Brazos County History, Rich Past - Bright Future, send your check for $50 (make it to The Brazos County Heritage and History Council) to Mrs. Glenna BRUNDIDGE, 1300 Dominik, College Station TX 77840. If you want a special inscription on it, give that information as well as your mailing address.

A letter from the Editor:

Dear Friends -

This has been a very difficult Advertiser to complete. As most of you know, I have resigned as Editor effective with this final issue of Volume VII. It just seemed that it was best for the Advertiser and the Association for me to take this action. I'm sure that the new publication committee headed by Nadine BILLINGSLEY will have the support of the membership and future volumes will be publications you can all be proud of. Since all the cemetery activity had already been taken over by the special projects committee, those records will be available to the future Advertisers. I will continue to contribute the copy of the 1870 Brazos County Census so you will continue to receive that on a regular basis.

Best Wishes and Good Ancestoring!

Mary

These gems were gleaned from the Walker County Historical Commission:

DID YOU KNOW THAT --

The first law school in the state of Texas was in Huntsville, in the Austin College Building in 1855.

There is a rough cut diamond in the Smithsonian Institute in Washington, D.C. marked -- "Diamond found near Huntsville Texas"

The shortest highway in Texas is in Huntsville, 'Spur 94' from Highway 190 to the grave of General Sam Houston.

One local writer once described Huntsville as 'a charming little hamlet, nestled in the foothills of the Ozarks'.

COMPUTER HELP FOR GENEALOGISTS - Part Three:

(This is the third in a series of columns designed to aid genealogists in using home computers to make their work more fun and efficient.)

Selecting Software
by John C. COSGRIFF Jr., M.L.S.

In my last column I recommended the purchase of an IBM computer and an Epson or IBM dot matrix printer because they have become de facto standards in the personal computer industry. This means that there is more software (computer programs) that will run on these than will run on any combination of computers and printers (with the possible exception of the numerous educational software available for the Apple IIe).

Almost all of the currently developed genealogical software (none of which we particularly recommend, by the way) runs on the IBM-PC. Additionally, hundreds of free programs or low-cost programs are available for the IBM. For the beginner, we advise against spending a lot of money on software. Instead, talk to people in your local computer clubs and see what they have that you can try out.

Let me name a few such programs you may well want to obtain and learn to use. For letter writing and general editing, I recommend PC-Write from Quicksoft. This powerful program allows you to find names, dates, and even sentences almost instantlly, and can help you index as well. We chose this program to use in writing our book, and felt most satisfied with the results. It is available from the company for $10, and often available free from computer clubs with IBMs.

Another good program for editing, and especially for the writer wanting to check spelling and synonyms, is Word Proof II from IBM for approximately $40.

Two little programs which are free, and which I use all the time are List54, a program that shows you what is in your files, and allows you to print selected lines; and SORTF, a program that will quickly sort words or names or dates into ascending or descending alphabetical order (great for making indexes).

One last program I must mention is Reflex, a database and spreadsheet combination from Borland International. This program requires more than 256K memory and also graphics capability. So it requires more than minimal hardware, yet for $99 this program is a bargain. It has the power, speed and flexibility to easily handle such complex tasks as analyzing census data, creating mailing lists, or calculating income taxes. It is surprisingly easy to learn and very fast.

These few examples should make you aware of how many good "freeware" and low-cost programs are available. Experiment with these as a beginner, not only to learn what computing is all about, but to also find which type of software is most helpful for YOUR particular genealogical needs.

(In the next column we will discuss editing and word processing.)

News From The Computer Interest Group

This article appeared in the National Genealogical Society NEWSLETTER, Vol. 12, No. 4, July/August 1986, p. 95.

Your editor felt this article complemented the one by Mr.COSGRIFF, see facing page.

"....Interests range from the personal desire to "do" one lineage or a complete surname index to the broader aspect of gathering data for publication so others might benefit from the indexing, abstracting, or compiling of genealogical source material.

"Genealogists seem to have discovered their powerful little computers really are very friendly. The intimidation by "computerese" we have all felt seems to be disappearing. Full use of the basic productivity applications (data bases and spread sheets, word processing, graphics, and communication) is being made in all the directions genealogists have exercised. But the most agonizing part of jumping on the CPU circuit is still the decision of what machine to buy.

"Buying a computer system is as personal a decision as the car we select, the home we choose, or the clothes we buy. So do that homework-and not entirely in computer stores. Talk to everyone you know who is using a computer for any reason, and read ..... publications available, as well as computer magazines.

"Computers are near perfect companions to the serious genealogist, and maybe even more so for the beginner, because they offer a means of neatly storing, retrieving, and reporting the information that is gathered in the search for our forefathers. They offer the additional opportunity to collect source data for publication and perform other tasks that benefit more than the individual computer owner.

"Those who would complain of the time it takes to key-in (type) the material from those filing cabinets and boxes are reminded of the value of reviewing previous research. How often have you looked again at some cold notes and realized there was a clue you missed the first time? A neatly arranged document stating the facts in an organized manner will be treasured by your descendants far more than a cabinet full of records they cannot decipher.

"NGC/CIG was created primarily to provide a forum for investigating, developing, and coordinating the use of computer techniques to support genealogical efforts and related tasks. Cost of membership is $5 for twelve months, which includes the bimonthly publication NGC/CIG Digest."

HOW BIG IS THE FAMILY TREE?

The descendants of those who came to America on the Mayflower probably now include more than three million Chinese in China, Hindus in India, and blacks in Africa — not to mention several million Americans and Europeans. Here's why . . .

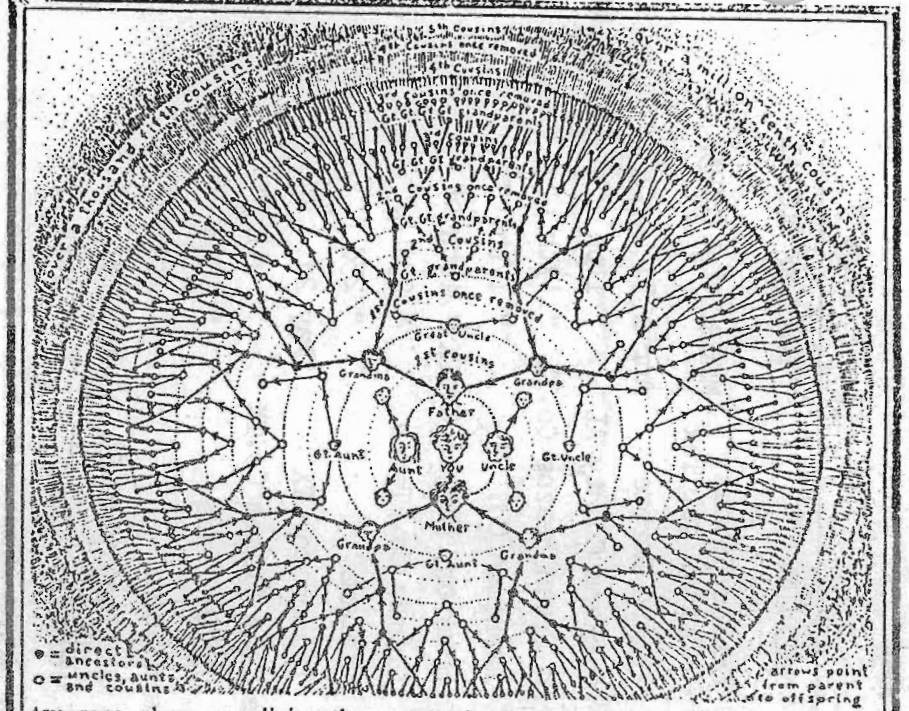

by Guy Murchie

□ ALTHOUGH FEW OF HIS MEMBERS seem to realize it, man's relation to himself is fairly easy to measure and is surprisingly close. In fact, no human being (of any race) can be less closely related to any other human than approximately fiftieth cousin, and most of us (no matter what color our neighbors) are a lot closer. Indeed this low magnitude for the lineal compass of mankind is accepted by the leading geneticists I have consulted (from J. B. S. Haldane to Theodosius Dobzhansky to Sir Julian Huxley), and it means simply that the family trees of all of us, of whatever origin or trait, must meet and merge into one genetic tree of all humanity by the time they have spread into our ancestries for about fifty generations. This is not a particularly abstruse fact, for simple arithmetic demonstrates that, if we double the number of our ancestors for each generation as we reckon backward (consistently multiplying them by two: 2 parents, 4 grandparents, 8 great-grandparents, 16 great-great-grandparents, etc.), our personal pedigree would cover mankind before the thirtieth generation. Mathematics is quite explosive in this regard, you see, for the thirtieth power of two (1,073,741,824) turns out to be much larger than was the earth's population 30 generations ago — that is, in the thirteenth century, if we assume 25 years to a generation.

But you cannot reasonably go on doubling your ancestors for more than a very few generations into the past because inevitably the same ancestor will appear on both your father's and your mother's sides of your family tree, reducing the total number (since you can't count the same person twice), and this must happen more and more as you go back in time. The basic reason it happens is that spouses are not just spouses but they are also cousins (although the relationship is usually too distant to be noticed), which means they are related to each other not only by marriage but also by "blood" because somewhere in the past they share ancestors. Another way of saying it is that your father's family tree and your mother's inevitably overlap, intertwine and become one tree as their generations branch out backward, a process forced by geometry until eventually all your ancestors are playing double, triple, quadruple and higher-multiple roles as both sides, all quarters, eighths, etc., of your tree finally merge with others into one common whole and the broad tops of the family trees of everyone alive and his family become identical with their ancestral world populations. These populations of course are the fertile portions of past societies and naturally cannot include "old maids," cautious bachelors, or anyone who fails to beget at least one continuous line of fecund descendants to disseminate his genes into mankind's future.

If people all over the earth always married at random, choosing their mates by lot regardless of what country, race, class, or religion they came from, it would take something like 35 to 40 generations for all their family trees thus to merge completely in common ancestors, the time beyond 30 generations needed because of the aforementioned slowdown in backward ancestral multiplication, a rate which progressively decreases from two to one and ultimately even below one when the family trees begin to encompass all humankind, whose numbers of course were smaller in earlier centuries. But obviously people do not mate at random, for there have always been barriers to boys and girls getting together: oceans, high mountains, and vast distances between them; rigid marriage laws, religious sex taboos, and innumerable racial and cultural prejudices. On the other hand, there have been almost as many compensating influences tending to overcome these barriers and increase the scope of mating: long hunting trips for food, nomadic herding, expeditions for business or war with its spoils in slaves and women; also strict laws against incest and inbreeding, all naturally abetted by man's primordial appetite for novel amorous adventure.

Probably most significant of these factors, geneticists agree, are the nearly universal rules of endogamy (inbreeding) and exogamy (outbreeding) that respectively permit marrying persons to pick each other only from inside the membership of a specified larger, *endo*gamous social group (such as a tribe or caste) yet also only from outside a specified smaller *ex*ogamous group (like a clan). In many sophisticated countries today of course the endogamous group is nothing less than mankind and the exogamous group is one's own immediate family, which gives a man latitude to propose to practically any uncommitted female in the wide spectrum between his niece and a chimpanzee. But virtually all the more primitive of human societies have traditions that greatly restrict Alice STUBBS brought this article from The Advertiser-Gleam,Guntersville, Ala., Oct. 9, 1985. It is headed 'Marshall County' and was contributed by Margene BLACK.

Why Their Name is ALVES and Not HOGG

If it hadn't been for a special act passed by the North Carolina Legislature, the members of the ALVES family here would not be named ALVES but HOGG.

The story goes back about 200 years. Shortly after the American Revolution, James HOGG of Hillsboro, North Carolina, was elected to the Legislature.

His wife was the former McDowell ALVES. McDowell was a family name. Both of them were from Scotland.

He liked the name ALVES better than the name HOGG, but HOGG was legally their name, and their children.

He was not especially concerned about their daughters' names because if they got married their names would change anyway; but it bothered him that their two sons would have to be HOGGs all their lives, and their sons after them, and so on down the line.

He took care of that. He put a law through the Legislature changing the sons' names to ALVES. In the law itself it explains that he didn't include the daughters because they could change their name by getting married. And later on the daughters did.

So down through the years, generation after generation, the family has been named ALVES.

The late Powell ALVES, a Guntersville plumber, used to quote this verse that he or some other member of the family had made up:

HOGG by birth,
HOGG by nature,
ALVES by act
Of the Legislature.

From The Quill, publication of Old Edgefield District Archives Chapter, S.C.

From Number 8, August 1986, this epitaph which had special appeal:

Here lies one you see
Who's climbed the family tree
She attended each course,
And exhausted every source
Finally, in desperation and love,
She searches in Heaven Above.

The following information condensed from the 1982 South Carolina Genealogical Society Annual Workshop, goes along with the two pages on "Early Migration Patterns" published in The Advertiser, VII, No. 3, pp. 120-121.

"It may have taken our ancestors 4 months to get to America on a sailing ship in the 17th century. We can make the same trip in 6 hours by jet. But they did it anyway. Toss out the idea that your ancestors stayed where they were born, and study migrations patterns for clues to tracing your family. Consult your pedigree chart and observe how few of your forebears died where they were born. It was about average for a family to move 7 times. In early years they always traveled in large groups, comprised of relatives, neighbors, or groups of families of a common religious faith.

"The first emigrants from our area (96 District,SC) were Indians as settlers pressed in to create the Upcountry Frontier. South Carolina Archives has records of the Proprietary Period (1670-1731) where warrants for land were issued to English Adventurers and settlers from Barbados, England and New England. James Island was largely settled by Dutch and sailors from New Amsterdam. Scottish settlers began their influx around 1700. As early as 1682 Huguenot refugees from France, Switzerland, and Walloons from Belgium, Holland and many dissenting groups arrived via England. The Church Act of 1706 established coastal Parishes. Fort Moore became an outpost in 1716.

"Charleston society had established itself no further inland than 50 miles. It remained for Anglo-Saxon and Huguenot groups to penetrate into the interior. By 1731 a Land Office operated, regulating settlement in Townships. The south eastern end of the state received German-Swiss. Williamsburg area was taken up by Scotch-Irish from Ireland, and Irish Baptists from Delaware. They were joined by Quakers and Germans from northern colonies. Scotch-Irish moved southward from Pennsylvania, through Virginia and North Carolina. Scots arrived directly from Scotland into both Carolinas, concentrating north and south of a line being established to divide North and South Carolina. Ulster Scots settled Kingston Township on the Waccamaw in 1732, while Queensboro Township contained Welsh from the Chesapeake Bay area and Pennsylyania. German-Swiss were located in Saxe-Gotha. New Windsor received Germans from Pennsylvania but was predominately Swiss led by John Tobler. Orangeburg was chosen for settlers from Bern, Zurich and the Palatinate of Northern Europe. By the time of the American Revolution 28% of the population of South Carolina was German.

"With the settlement of the Back Country control relaxed over the arbitrary areas of settlement. This brought overland migration from New Castle, Pennsylvania and Maryland into present Chester and York Counties. Prior to 1754 Virginians from the Tinkling Springs area of Augusta County arrived over the Great Wagon Road, which went from Philadelphia to South Carolina. A continuous influx continued until 1770; passing through North Carolina, via Anson, Mecklenburg and Rowan counties. By 1784 many land grants were recorded to these families from more northerly colonies; especially in Richland and along both banks of the Savannah River.

Early Migration Patterns (Cont'd)

"Low country families began to acquire plantations and summer retreats in the Up Country, in order to escape fevers and the 'miasma'. These numbers increased after the Cherokee Withdrawal in 1761.

"Townships settled in 96 District 1763-64 were Boonesborough, by Scotch-Irish from Bally Bay, Ireland; Londonborough by German-Swiss via England, located on Hard Labor Creek; and New Bordeaux consisting of French Huguenots, refugees arriving in 1764 in what is now McCormick County.

South Carolinians - Where They Came From

1. Proprietary Period 1670 - 1730

English adventurers & settlers from the Barbados, England and New England

Dutch settlers & sailors from New Amsterdam

Scottish settlers

Huguenot refugees from France, Switzerland, Belgium and Holland, many via England

2. Colonial Period 1730 - 1785

Townships: 1735 - 1765

Virginians, Germans, German-Swiss, Scotch-Irish from Ireland, Irish Baptists from Delaware, Quakers, Germans from northern colonies. Scotch-Irish from PA, NC, Scots from Scotland, French Huguenots, Germans & German-Swiss, Scotch-Irish direct from Ireland, Acadians, Santo Domingans.

Backcountry: 1750s - 1790s

Control over settlement areas released. Savannah River banks, overland settlement from more northerly colonies. Began some acquiring of plantations and summer retreats by Lowcountry families, increasing to more later.

3. Revolutionary War Period 1776 - 1783

Hessians (Germans), NC, GA, MD, and especially PA soldiers and other war visitors stayed in the south.

Out-migration begins: Tories left, SC soldiers granted land which they had chosen in GA. To others, Tenn. & Fla. looked good. Quakers, particularly German pacifists, left.

4. State Adjustment Period 1782-1861

Immigrants:

State Land Grants and Rev. War Bounty Grants brought many Rev. soldiers into the state. 60% of our veterans fought from Pennsylvania. Tories returned to their homes.

Early Migration Patterns (Cont'd)

Emmigrants:

Slavery issue causes Quakers to go to Tenn., etc. 1808, many Methodists also went at this time.

'Georgia Fever' spread into Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee, and Ohio Fever.

Florida settled (many saw coveted land during Indian Wars).

Georgia gold lottery and California Gold Rush.
